SHARING AND CARING

As you grow older, you become aware of what belongs to you. If you have brothers and sisters, your parents tell you to share your toys with them.

Sharing at first can be a little difficult. But it will make you happy, if you share your sweets and toys with others. I will tell you a short story which will help you to learn the meaning of sharing.

There was a poor little girl named Shazia. She lived in a village. Her parents were so poor that they could not buy her any toys to play with. They did not even have enough money to feed themselves properly.

One day, there was a grand 'Mela' in the village. Many people from nearby villages came to see it. Shazia was very happy about going there. She asked her father to give her one rupee for a ride on the elephant. But her father did not have any money to give her. So Shazia and her younger brother Ali went to the 'Mela' without any money.

At the Mela Shazia and Ali stood and watched other children enjoying rides on the elephant. A kind old lady who was watching them asked Shazia "Would you also like to have a ride on the elephant?" Shazia could only nod with happiness. So the old lady gave her a rupee. With the rupee in her hand, she ran towards the elephant. Suddenly she heard her brother Ali crying for a balloon. She loved her brother very much and could not watch him crying so she came back and bought a balloon for him. With the rest of the money Shazia and Ali bought ice-cream and shared it.

So you see how sharing makes everyone happy!

Poem to learn

Sharing is caring for other's joy,
A cake, a sweet or a little toy;
So share and make someone smile today,
And you too will have a happy day.

Things to tell and write.

1. Who gave Shazia the money to ride on the elephant?
