Honesty

Fizzah Abid Warris

The Holiday Homework

Nomi and Abid were classmates and good friends. They were excited about their summer vacations. Their class teacher gave them holiday homework and said, "Enjoy the holidays but don't forget to finish your homework on time."

At home, Nomi asked his mother, "Mom, will you please help me to do holiday homework? I want to finish it soon so that I can enjoy my holidays." Nomi's mother agreed and helped him in finishing the homework.

In the evening, Abid came to Nomi's home and asked, "Nomi, will you please give me your homework-notebook? I need some help." Nomi lent him his notebook. Actually, Abid did not want to work hard and thought that he would copy Nomi's homework. While he was copying, his mother came there and saw everything. She said, "Abid, this is not good. You are copying someone else's homework!"

His mother continued, "Child, you will be dishonest to your teacher when you will say that you have done the homework yourself. But in reality you have copied it." Abid understood and promised to return Nomi's notebook. His mother, then, helped him in finishing his homework.

Moral: Be honest and always be truthful
